"The Italian Barber." How Cupid plays the game of hearts. "Sweet Italian love, mia Italian love, you don't need the moonlight your love to tell her." The author of the above lines surely knew his Italian well, for there is no easier victim of Cupid's darts than the Italian, and the miniature unclad god has no need to resort to his many time-honored trimmings, such as the moonlight, babbling brooks or shady faces to induce carnal intoxication. A pretty face, and the Latin gentleman falls. A portrayal of this is given in this Biograph comedy drama. It's at the Dreamland.
